

Respiratory System

After entering through the _____ and _____, the air passes through the _____. The tube then branches into two _____, which branch further to form _____. These end up at tiny air sacs called _____, where gas exchange takes place.

The lungs are protected by bones called _____. These move during breathing due to the action of _____ _____ which lie between the ribs. The _____ is a muscle that forms the floor of the thorax, it also moves during breathing.